Regiment Team Played All Kinds of Ball.

ST. LOUIS BOYS OUTCLASSED

Barrack's Team Shows Great Improvement.

Necessity for Ground Rules Apparent—Too Much Playing in Grand Stand.

The St. Louis College Baseball Team is composed of young men who have earned reputations as good ball players in other teams, for when Captain Thompson made up the nine he picked only those who he knew could "play ball." The public had great hopes for the lads in their game with the Regiment team, after the latter were so badly worsted by the Stars the week before. But the college boys were not in it from start to finish. Changes in the Regiment team strengthened it, so that there was no chance of defeat. The absence of Kiley, the catcher, who is laid up for repairs, secured one or two runs to the students, which they might not have had if he had been in his place.

The pleasure of the game was marred, however, by the unwarranted exhibition of hoodlumism in the grand stand, as well as on the diamond, and if the managers of the clubs expect to have ladies attend the games they must meet and pass rules that will give the policemen who parade the grand stand the right to eject men who use language that would not be tolerated in a dive. Another thing: Honolulu people like clean baseball, and by cleanliness it is meant that members of teams will attend strictly to their business without attempting to interfere by word or action with members of a rival team. When the Regiments played the Stars, they were sticklers for rules and would allow no violations. But on Saturday it was different; more coaching was done by Gorman, from the vicinity of the players' bench, and by Kiley, in the grand stand, than by the men at first and third, regularly assigned to that duty. Again, on two occasions, when the St. Louis catcher was trying to get foul flies the Regiments yelled: "You can't get it," and Gorman, who by the way, is captain of the Regiment team, and is supposed to know better, was loudest of all. The game on Saturday was as nearly as possible a duplicate of those played on the lots in the mission. If jamming, vulgarity and profanity, in the grand stand or on the diamond, constitutes "good, clean ball," then the 500 people who witnessed the game on Saturday, had their fill, but there is a horrible suspicion that decent people of Honolulu do not like that kind of "clean ball."

Akina, who caught for the Waikuku team last year, was not in good form, and retired after the fourth inning. He was succeeded by Kanahi, who though appearing in a nondescript uniform, played good ball for the St. Louis team. W. Woods, second baseman of the Regiment team last year, played right field for the St. Louis on Saturday. He made an excellent fly catch in the first inning, and distinguished himself throughout the game. If Captain Thompson could but realize the difference the change would make, he would put Woods at second in the games this year.

The St. Louis team won the toss, and sent the Regiment to the bat. Moore was the first man to bat, and through Akina's bad playing got two bases on strikes and a passed ball. Duncan lost his chance when he sent the ball into Wood's territory. Davis flew short to Simerson, but the young man ran and caught the ball just as he slipped to the ground. But he held on to it, and put his man out. Gorman did not get to first. For the Regiment team, Scanlon distinguished himself in the first inning by making a pretty catch at first base. The inning closed without either side scoring. In the second inning Lemon was batted wherever the barracks boys listed. Hansmann gathered in a fly from Scanlon in a way that surprised the tall first baseman. Five runs to the good for the Regiment team set the college boys to thinking, and they were not through doing mental work at the end of the game. They were clearly outplayed at every point by the Regiment, though they played fairly good ball, and had not the Regiment team put up a better game than they did with the Stars, they would have won out.

Bowers, for the Regiment, pitched a good game, and is earnest in his work, ignoring the grand stand in every particular. Following is the score:

said to one of our customers the other day, "They rent 'Ramblers' because that's about all they are good for." The customer set him thinking when he said, "I should think that on account of the hard usage rented wheels get, it would hardly pay to rent any but the best." That's right, we rent "Ramblers" and "Columbias" because they will stand hard riding better than any make we know of; and in our renting department we have a chance to see just what stuff is in wheels. So just put this in your hat, friend, a wheel that will stand the wear-and-tear of a renting department, will grow fat on the treatment given by the average owner.
